

July 2020

API is excited to announce the upcoming implementation of a new back end operations system for our independently owned warehouses. Our team has been working closely with our distribution software partner to tailor a system that meets both the needs of our customers and of API for now and the future.

We have every expectation of a smooth transition, however, we know how important it is that you have the products for your patients that you count on from API. We encourage all stores to be proactive and consider increasing your on-hand inventory of the faster moving items typically purchased from API, leading up to the systems conversion date of Friday, July 31st.
